ON SCRAP BOOKS.

A correspondent writes from Pensacola Fla., asking what is perfection or the nearest perfection in a scrap book, also desiring begin to keep it with extreme exuberance, and you gradually fing and flicker out and mix, as one might say, I began simply by ordering from my conessman an edition de luxe of the report of the commissioner of education, bound in plain muslin and boards. Taking a volume of this kind to my airy suit of hall bedroom and woodbox, with the keen blade of a butcher knife I out out two leaves and left a third all the way through without marring the general plot of the book. This gave room for pasting excerpts and other literary gems, most of which referred to myself, and pre-vented that general fullness which would have Whenever a paper referred to me I bought some copies, and, having sent one to my dear loud and extremely offensive pasts, on the page. Thus I filled at last a whole volume of the reports of the commissioner of educa-tion with paragraphs in which it was stated with more or less typographical inaccuracy that I was "In town and quartered at Riley's hotel," or that I was "on our streets," or that I "shook hands with friends here yesterday," or that I was "attending the quarterly conference in town," and many other state-ments which would be invaluable as referarger book in which I kept the adverse critems of the press, paragraphs in which was alluded to as "the intellectual wart on the editorial page of The Sassafras Commonwealth," and "the flea bitten fugitive from justice who edits the porous plaster across the street."

Whenever my feelings were wounded I put the item in the large book and kept it where my children could see it when I should rest from my labors forever. I thought it would teach them humility and really do them good. The other book I used to keep on the center table for the use of visitors. If I had a visitor who had the habit of putting in a day or two at a time conversing with me about himself I generally asked him to glance wer this scrap book, and while he was doing so I would slip out and take a train for some other point. It is a good plan.

Just keep an egotistical scrap book, using the sourcet paste you can procure, and when a man insists on giving you large tales and mowsful of information about himself when rou would rather converse about yourself, hand him this book to entertain himself with $1,654,556 and then you can gently coze out the side door and go to the remotest parts of the

Finally I heard of a new patent scrap book with ready gummed pages, and I bought one. The price was big enough for a set of Dickens, but I had heard that it was a good thing, and so I got it. Then a period of humidity came along and that book closed for-ever. It wouldn't open any more than a I waited till autumn and then got another one. My wife filled it full of autumn leaves. They were not fully dry. She then put a heavy weight on the top. We still have the scrap book and the leaves, but the book opens with a time lock, and the time set for it to open is a profound secret between Gabriel Lately I have adopted the plan of purchasing several thousand manifa envelopes, puting each newspaper clipping into one of these envelopes, and then writing the title on the outside. I then hire a house and, by using the gummed flaps of the envelopes, fasten them in rows tastefully on the inner walls of the house, marking a general heading over each row by means of red chalk. This gives the room a cheery appearance, adds to the acoustics of the house and is certainly very convenient. By means of a step ladder I am enabled to select anything I desire rendily, and the space usually fooled away and covered by expensive but non-remunerative pictures is made highly useful.

Horn Bails do this work, and it is not done the same way I would do it myself. Last year I went away for a few months to give some rendings in aid of a few-poor children for whom I and to this day I think he holds the feel myself responsible, and, while absent, I had a young man named Pulaski Murkley attend to this. He was very methodical and wrote a good hand, as I afterwards learned Stock branded by comparing some of my own signatures at the bank with some studies which be had made of the same subject. They were better, if anything, than my own, I must admit, any the same subject. and the cashler at the bank agreed with me about it. kept my scrap book carefully, according to his own ideas. He came from a summer resort called Chisel-'em-out-of-their-eye-teeth-hurst-by-the-sea. His father resided at Upsix flights-of-stairs-on-the-Hudson, and usually spent his summers at About-two-milesbehind - Burdick's-lath - lumber-and - shinglemill-cash-paid-for-hides-undertaking-embalming-and-ice-cream-by-the-sea. People who come from there always think they know all about everything, and so I allowed him to run my serap book. Last fall I had occasion to look for an arti-cle on the English colliery. For a week or two I could not find it and probably would never have run across it if I hadn't imprened to look one day under the heading of epi-

A Question of Time. Another story about land speculation in the west is worthy of relating. It happened that a land scheme was organized at Los Angeles, and many San Francisco people entered heartily into the enterprise. Among the subscribers was a traveling salesman, whose business chanced to take him to the town in which he had purchased his lot. Desiring to experience the novel sensation of a landlord, he determined to survey his prop-erty. The plans were got out, and to his horror he found that the lot he had purchased was situated one hundred yards from the shore, and that the Pacific ocean was at present in full possession of his claim. This was too much to be borne. He went back to San Francisco and sought the agent who had so badly tricked him. That official received him with bland urbamty and listened to his explanation with an amused smile. "My dear boy," said the agent, after he had finished the recital of his wrongs, "your land is all right. At present, it is true, the ocean covers your very desirable lot; but consider, sir, the Pacific ocean is receding from the coast at the rate of two inches a year, and in about 800 years your property will be the finest in the state. Good morning." The agent is living yet.—Phila-

ARIZONA ENTERPRISE. A PIANO TUNER TALKS.

COUNTERED IN HIS TRADE.

Bill Nye Relates His Experience for a Rats Play Havoc with the Felts-Children Poke Canes Under the Strings-Finding n Lost Pocketbook-Results of a Man's know my own experience in scrap books, if I "Look out for that rat!" was the exclamation of a piano tuner to a reporter, a few days ago, as he stood watching him A scrap book generally is like a dinry; you take a piano to pieces. The words had barely been said when a large, lean rat jumped out of the instrument and scam-pered across the room and out of an open oor. While he was dexterously removthe reporter asked if rats were usu part and parcel of pianes. The tuner re-marked that while probably two-thirds of the instruments in residences were free from the rodents, the other third were infested with them, at least that had been his experience during twenty years of his life. Those in the country, especially in well to do farmers' houses, were gener-ally inhabited by rats, and in dozens of cases fully half a bushel of small scraps of paper that had been carried there by one, I carefully cut out the excerpt from another copy and pasted it, by means of some and the nests were not so bad, but rats very frequently did the instrument much damage. Rats play havoc with the felts in the action, and he had repaired planes where the felts had all been caten away. Occasionally a hungry rat is discovered that shows fight, and the wielding of a broomstick, with the accompanying screaming by the women folk, is neces-sary to get rid of the animal.

Children oftentimes cause pianes to get out of order, but while the trouble caused by them is usually quickly repaired there are times when they do more damage than rats. Left alone in the room with an open instrument the spirit of mischief comes over them, and a cane or a book is poked in under or among the strings. owner returns to play on the piano, and then finds it at sixes and sevens. As everything was all right but a few min-utes before the cause of the trouble cannot be understood, and then there is bluster about the house. Should the iano be a new one the maker is blamed, e instrument is condemned, and a sharp letter is forwarded to the seller. The repairer with fear and trembling hastens to he scene, the trouble is found, and after apologies, the whipping of the small boy who did the mischief, and the payment of the bill for repairs, the piano is left to its

WHERE THE MONEY GOES. Picking up a five cent piece lying on the action, the tuner said: "Here is something, too, I find as well as rats' nests and the work of children. To be sure money is not found frequently, especially in any considerable amount, but the finding of we fat pocketbooks and a ten dollar gold piece I will never forget. The gold had been placed in the piano for safe keeping been placed in the plane for safe keeping by a young lady, and its hiding place for-gotten, and my finding it, of course, made the owner happy. The bringing to light of one of the pocketbooks made me $50 richer, that being a present from its loser. It had been missing for a year, and contained $600. Detectives had been uting for thieves who, it was supposed had stolen the money. The discovery of the pocketbook brought back the recol-lection that it had been laid on the top lid of an upright plane, and that it had found it.

"Instead of getting a reward I came near being arrested, and perhaps sen-tenced to a term of imprisonment for finding the purse. Its contents were over $200, and like the other one, having been carclessly left on top of the instrument, it fell inside. Being missed while I was in the house, and the owner of the money, a country justice, remembering where he one who had taken it. When I remarked wife and two daughters, he told me of his loss and what he suspected, and threatened my arrest unless the money was immediately produced. It was a bad predicament to be in, and what to do puzzled me. The finding of the other pocketbook flashed across my mind. I suggested a search in the interior of the plane, and there it was found to my jey. The old man took it without as much as saying Thank you, opinion that I hid it away in the piano."

-Chicago Journal. Close by the side of Prince Bismarck's tion, and the great German minister never falls to "try his weight" at least once a day, or to record the result of his trial in the small diary he keeps attached by a string to the arm of the weighing chair for the purpose. There was a time when the prince scaled the somewhat Gargantuan weight of 247 pounds; but "much has happened since then," as his late friend Lord Beaconsfield once remarked. And, among other things, the prince has taken not to "Banting," but to a more recent system of dealing with one's "too, too solid flesh." Thanks to determined perseverance in the system, the German chancellor was last Friday able to announce at the breakfast table, in a tone amounce at the oreastast table, in a tone of triumph, that he that morning only weighed 199 pounds. Europe, which has such a deep interest in Prince Eismarck's continued life and good health, would do well, if possible, to secure for informa-tion a daily return of the weights recorded in the chancellor's little diary .-London Figuro. Coffee as a Disinfectant, Coffee is a handy and harmless disinfec-ent. Experiments have been made in Paris to prove this. A quantity of meat was hing up in a closed room until decomposed, and then a chaling dish was introduced and 500 grammes of coffee thrown on the fire. In a few minutes the room was completely disinfected. In another room was completely disinfected. In another room subdivisited hydrogen and other room sulphureited hydrogen and ammonia were developed, and ninety grammes of coffee destroyed the smell in about half a minute. It is also stated Thos. F. Weedin, drugs and medithat coffee destroys the smell of musk, casterum and asafetida. As a proof that the noxious smells are really decom-posed by the fumes of coffee and not merely overpowered by them, it is stated that the first vapors of the coffee were not smelled at all, and are therefore chemically absorbed, while the other smells radually diminish as the fumiration co tinues. The best way to effect this fumi-gation is to pound the coffee in a moriar, and then strew it on a hot iron plate, which, however, must not be red hot .-

The Snakes of Bengal. The mortality from snake bites in Ben gal is much larger among women than among men. They are usually bitten in the early morning, when they go out un-seen before daylight, either to fetch wood from the fagget stack or for some other domestic purpose. During the rainy sea-son, when nearly all the rice fields are un-der water, the snakes take refuge in the higher plats of land, on which the villages are built, and they hide themselves in the little woodstacks and granaries in the court yards of the houses; while not infrequently they take up their abode in the house itself, where they are allowed to dwell with impunity, and sometimes fed with milk, until, on some unlucky day, the wife treads accidentally on the snake in the dark, and it turns upon her and bites her. From the bite of a full grown cobra death ensues in a very few minutes, and the natives have no such remedies at they put a vain faith in the fanciful their priests.-Quarterly Review.
